Appendix 2 – Overview of programmes and side events affiliated with AIDS 2010

Youth Programme

The Youth Programme at AIDS 2010 was aimed at empowering young people, advocating for critical issues affecting youth worldwide, and further pinpointing current strategies for effective change. This programme was developed in close partnership with the Vienna YouthForce, a coalition of youth-driven and youth-supported non-governmental organizations, for the fifth time since the Youth Programme was created.

The AIDS 2010 Youth Programme included the Youth Pavilion, the main networking space for young people, located in the Global Village. The Youth Pavilion is a space to host sessions, cultural performances, meetings and forums, showcase achievements of young people, facilitate networking opportunities, engage participants in dialogue and maintain the momentum from the Youth Pre-conference. The pavilion also featured the Youth-Adult Commitment Desk, aimed at holding decision makers accountable for their promises to young people.

The AIDS 2010 Youth Programme also featured a youth-dedicated website[1], a pocket guide to help young participants navigate the conference, and youth presenters in plenaries and other sessions, as well as a team of youth rapporteurs dedicated entirely to recording the proceedings and ground-breaking presentations at the conference from a youth perspective.

Cultural Programme

The Global Village, which was accessible without entrance fee, featured a comprehensive and truly international cultural programme where artists could present their works on HIV and AIDS through a variety of activities, such as: theatre, music and dance performances; one-woman shows; poetry sessions; documentaries, and short and feature films focusing on HIV and AIDS (in many cases, viewers had the chance to discuss the film with the filmmaker following the screening); and interactive art projects, art exhibits and a comic series from Brazil (more details on the Global Village are available in Section X). Exhibitions of photographs and paintings were also displayed throughout the conference venue, outside the Global Village.

Surveyed delegates were asked how worthwhile the conference's cultural activities were in the conference venue and Global Village. Of the 2,654 respondents, the majority rated them "worthwhile" or "very worthwhile" (43% and 33%, respectively, vs. 18% who found them "somewhat worthwhile", 4% "not very worthwhile", and 1% "not worthwhile at all").

An off-site cultural programme was also developed on the occasion of AIDS 2010 with the objective of drawing the attention of the people living in and visiting Vienna to the topic of HIV/AIDS. To this end, a firm of cultural consultants based in Vienna provided the contacts of cultural institutions and artists, and coordinated their contributions. Each partnering cultural institution or artist was responsible for financing, developing the content and organizing its own event/activity. In order to promote this programme, 50,000 copies of a small booklet produced in German and English were distributed widely in Vienna by the Vienna Tourist Board. Starting in early May and closing on 24 July, this programme featured about 40 different performances using art, film, music, dance, design and architecture to convey messages on HIV and AIDS, some of them focusing specifically on children and youth.

Engagement tours

The engagement tours project offered delegates a unique learning experience through interactive site visits to local institutions that work on HIV issues in Vienna (local organizations, hospitals, a research lab and a police detention centre). The goal was to exchange knowledge, best practices, successes, challenges and innovative solutions through dialogue and hands-on activities. Tours were available to conference delegates at no cost and transportation was provided to and from the conference venue. Delegates signed up for the tours via email on a first-come-first-served basis.

[1] www.youthaids2010.org

A total of 17 tours, most of them lasting about one hour each, were organized during AIDS 2010 (vs. 15 during AIDS 2008), in 10 different institutions[2]. A total of 139 delegates participated in these tours, which represents a decrease of 7% compared with AIDS 2008 (150 delegates).

Unlike at AIDS 2008, no survey was conducted during AIDS 2010 due to resource constraints.

Affiliated events

Affiliated events are meetings or activities held outside the main conference venue, before or during the conference, and include a broad range of locations, time periods and formats. Events may be population- or issue-specific (e.g., focusing on women, gay men/MSM, harm reduction, faith based) and are organized independently by corporations, scientists, community groups, health care workers, etc.

A total of 22 affiliated events were approved by the conference organizers on the basis of their relevance to the character or purpose of AIDS 2010. They included workshops, symposia, seminars, meetings and panel discussions, as well as the Human Rights March, a rally, live performance by Annie Lenox, the arrival in Vienna of the "Vienna express", a train which crossed several EECA countries in June-July 2010, and the arrival of bikes taking part in a ride from Mexico to Vienna.

[2] Aids Hilfe (Austria's primary non-profit institution working in the field of HIV and AIDS), Police Detention Centre (with its harm-reduction programme), AKH (General Hospital: treatment, health care and best practices), Otto Wagner Hospital (HIV clinic), Polymun Scientific (private company developing and manufacturing biopharmaceuticals and liposomal formulations), Sophie (education for female sex workers), Buddy Verein (NGO improving and strengthening of the psycho-social situation of people living with HIV and AIDS), Ganslwirt Clinic (facility and service for drug users), Grüner Kreis (society for the rehabilitation and integration of addicted persons), Streetwork (harm-reduction programme working with drug users in drug dealing areas and offering counselling and information about drug use).
